Raising the standard in sanitary waste management

Initial[®]

Initial[®]

Every year, millions of Absorbent Hygiene Products (AHPs), such as nappies, personal care wipes, incontinence and feminine hygiene products are disposed of. Businesses and the management of any premises have a duty of care to ensure any sanitary waste is managed safely and hygienically through to point of disposal, whilst complying with legislative and environmental requirements.

The volume of waste and the changing needs of washroom users mean businesses must consider a broader range of factors to ensure customer expectations are being met. Aging populations, a greater awareness of bladder and bowel control issues, gender equality and a shifting focus on gender neutral washrooms mean a range of discreet and safe facilities are needed for the disposal of sanitary waste.

A lack of facilities can negatively impact the perception of your brand when visitors risk coming into contact with unpleasant and unhygienic waste products or users are forced to flush absorbent hygiene products (AHPs) down the toilet causing expensive system blockages.

Having the right waste management strategy in place is essential.

Initial's range of solutions help you reach the highest standards in waste management.

Each unit features sleek, contemporary designs and integral antimicrobial technology, which inhibits the growth of bacteria and spread of germs.

Available for female, male and unisex washrooms, our waste management solutions provide users a discreet, easy-to-use and safe way to dispose of Absorbent Hygiene Products (AHPs).

Giving you confidence that your business is meeting environmental and legislative requirements through the safe and effective disposal of waste.
